

Da CR3W

Update 2010

Brady is the most adorable of the crew. He has recently returned home from the Ireland Dublin Mission. When Brady is ballin' he stands outside the arc and chucks up a rainbow looking for the pot of gold. He currently stabs people for a living; he is a phlebotomist.

Alan has finally returned from his vacation in Florida. As you can tell by the picture he is looking super sexy as usual. His favorite past times include: Coaching Skyline's hockey team, eating Taco Bell, and hanging out with his 6ix girlfriends. We suspect that deep down Alan is truly seeking out his one and only, but he would never admit to that.

Chris's head is still exceptionally large. But these days it seems to be filled with more intelligent matters than before. Chris is working along side Jono at iFreedom Direct. He spends most of his free time on his quest for a wife. Ladies, if you are single, give him a call! Please! That way we don't have to listen when he doesn't have a date.

Dee is home from the "Great Ohio Columbus Mission". After spending two years with a tie designer as a mission president, Dee prides himself in his knowledge of ties. Which is just plain annoying, we now call him the tie nazi. When Dee isn't practicing tying fancy knots in the mirror, he has been doing web design for various clients.

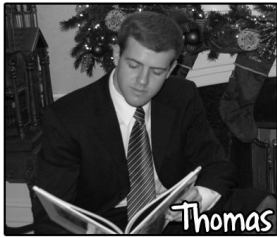

Cory was the last of Da CR3W to return. He spent the past 2 years in Uruguay, preaching the gospel. His mission had a huge impact on him and changed him greatly, for instance people now trust him with money, he is now working as a teller at Key Bank. Cory has been rocking a beard lately and 2 out of 2 ladies agree it's attractive.

Sean is back from the Dominican Republic. He has been living in Chile, translating for a squid fishing company, apparently squid speak spanish now. We all try to spend as much time with Sean as possible because we don't know how much longer he'll be able to avoid interpol, Mi6, DEA, and the CIA.

Jono has been home from his mission to Peru for over a year, which, according to Cory, means he's no longer, a returned missionary (sorry ladies). Jono runs the IFD with Lancaster we're suspicious as to how much work he actually does there because there are so many girls that also work there. We hope he'll be working along side his eternal companion soon enough.

Thomas is still our designated team mom. He attends BYU where we believe he is pursuing a degree in feminine studies. We don't see a lot of Tom these days, but we're pleased when we do because he ups da crew's gorgeous factor by at least 12 points when he is around. He also entertains us with his made up language and fun facts about "where he comes from" as he is recently returned from a mission to Thailand.

Nate sits proudly in the top three most loveable and cuddly crewsters. He also attends BYU and rooms with Tom. We've tried to make him not smile but it's impossible. His smile is lovely though so we never try too hard. One day Nate will make one lucky lady very happy but for today he's flying solo.

Chris Ninow is working in Chile with Sean at Fred's squid and salmon operation. He's been dating Sharon Davis and they are currently engaged to be married next summer. We're all pretty stoked for him but are sad to see our first friend fall to the tyrannical institution of marriage.